How To Use This Booklet

Get Drug Companies to fill your Prescription for FREE

In this publication you will find an A to Z listing of drugs made by manufacturers who have patient assistance programs. Most major drug companies provide free medications, but rarely, if ever publicize the programs.

Nearly 43 million Americans are lacking health care insurance, many sick people can not afford potentially life saving drugs. Generally drug companies require a doctor's consent to provide the medication and proof of the patient's financial hardship. Each manufacturer has varying requirements that change frequently so they can not be summarized for the purpose of this publication.

Though not widely known, drug companies have programs that offer many prescription drugs free of charge to poor and other qualified groups that cannot afford them. However, these free drug programs are being used by only a small number of people that could truly benefit from them.

Cross Referencing a Drug You Need

Look up the drug name in the alphabetical listing (Pg. 6-23). Located next to the drug name there is a number in parenthesis ( ). This number cross references a pharmaceutical manufacturers contact information (Pg. 24-31).

Pharmaceutical manufacturers' names and programs change frequently. If a drug that you use is not listed here ask your pharmacist or physician for the name of the manufacturer, and the phone number. You owe it to yourself to find out if there is a patient assistance program and if you qualify for it.

Tips and Questions You Should Ask

Simply call the pharmaceutical manufacturer and ask them if they have a patient assistance program and ask what the requirements are. Some companies require that you have a limited income or no insurance coverage, while others require only that you get a doctor's referral. Frequently used names for these programs are reimbursement program, indigent patient program, compassionate care program, medical needs program.

In most cases you will need your physician to request your participation in a program by a phone call or letter from your doctor.

If your doctor refuses to call or does not believe the program will work, contact the drug companies yourself and find out about the application process. You will still need a doctor to fill the application, but you can at least get the forms, and then encourage your doctor to complete them. If your doctor still refuses, maybe you can find another doctor who will.

Another cost saver is to ask your doctor if he/she has any samples of the drugs that you have been prescribed . Many manufacturers send free samples on a regular basis for doctors to give to their patients.

Find out how you will receive the prescription drugs, and how you can get refills. Most companies send the medications directly to your doctor. There have been some problems with delays in receiving the drugs, so check to see what the company's shipping schedule is, and what you or your doctor should do if there is a problem.
